

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A photographic service system comprising: at least one or more of an image input apparatus including a receiver for receiving an order by itself (without a dedicated operator), a processor for photographic-processing a silver halide photographic light-sensitive material, a converter for converting image recording information of the silver halide photographic light-sensitive material after the photographic processing into digital image data through an image sensor, and issuing device for issuing an ID for retrieving digital image data and an index print after receiving an order; and an image server including a communication device for communicating with the image input apparatus through a network and a giving device for giving the ID for retrieving digital image data to the digital image data transferred from the image input apparatus and for storing the digital image data.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176